

Snowy owl

An instantly recognisable owl, the snowy owl is characterised by its distinctive white feathers, which gives it good camouflage against the snow.

Male and female snowy owls can be distinguished by their markings; males are nearly all white, while females are marked with dark bars.

Snowy owls usually eat small mammals, although they are capable of taking prey as large as geese!